Sub
B(1)

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a search support device and method in which URL addresses are classified into categories and registered. By this device and method, the category of an address indicating the location of information that can be accessed on a network is determined from an address already registered, and the address is registered under the determined category.